A Hunger Artist - Wikipedia "A Hunger Artist" (German: "Ein Hungerkünstler") is a short story by Franz Kafka first published in Die neue Rundschau in 1922. The story was also included in the collection A Hunger Artist (Ein Hungerkünstler), the last book Kafka prepared for publication, printed by Verlag Die Schmiede after Kafka's death. SparkNotes: A Hunger Artist: Plot Overview A man who is known only as "the hunger artist" and fasts for a living travels from town to European town with the impresario (his manager). In each town, the hunger artist chooses a public location and puts himself on display in a locked, straw-lined cage, where he fasts for periods of up to. A Hunger Artist Franz Kafka - Evergreen State College A Hunger Artist Franz Kafka During these last decades the interest in professional fasting has markedly diminished. It used to pay very well to stage such great performances under one's own management, but today that is quite impossible.

A Hunger Artist by Franz Kafka Translation by Ian Johnston. In the last decades interest in hunger artists has declined considerably. Whereas in earlier days there was good money to be earned putting on major productions of this sort under one's own management, nowadays that is totally impossible. A Hunger Artist - Shmoop Published in 1924, "A Hunger Artist" (also translated as "A Starvation Artist") was also the title of the short story collection in which it was included. In the story collection, Kafka presents a number of iconic artist-figures: a mouse singer, a trapeze artist, and, of course, the hunger artist. A Hunger Artist by Franz Kafka - Goodreads In "A Hunger Artist," the hunger artist's troubled relationship with his spectators suggests that the artist exists apart from society and must therefore be misunderstood. In the hunger artist's case, being an artist means cutting oneself off from the world, a conclusion reflected in the hunger artist's conscious choice to sequester.
