INDEPENDENT ETHICS COMMISSION
633 17th St. Suite 1300
Denver, Colorado 80202

February 25, 2008

The Colorado Supreme Court today issued its decision in the Developmental Pathways case and stated that the Independent Ethics Commission is not yet in existence until the fifth commissioner is appointed.

The Colorado Independent Ethics Commission, which is currently composed of four citizen volunteers, is working hard to select the fifth commissioner, to hire its Executive Director, and to promulgate its rules. Until such time as the fifth commissioner is seated and the rulemaking on our complaint and advisory opinion procedures are in place, the Commission will not process complaints, requests for advisory opinions or letter rulings.

As to any complaints that the Commission may receive prior to such time, the complaining parties will be notified that their complaints will not be processed.
